

A tradition grows

By Dan Hyland

Well, it's been a long time since the last newsletter, and a lot has happened since then. Not in the least are the excellent developments in the UWRC sponsored race department. The running club put on an excellent Valentine's Day 5k, and things are looking good for this fall's upcoming Fall 15k.

As I said, the Valentine's Day race went off without a hitch this year. The field was about as big as last year's, and everybody made it in all right. Well, anyway, the important thing is that nobody got lost out there. We had a great turnout of running club members helping out on the course, working on results, and on all the other jobs that needed doing. Even the few running club members who ran the race were able to pitch in and help out at the finish line. With all the help, we put on a first-class race. Thanks to all who helped make it a success.

Of course, the running club isn't about to rest after putting on a good race. That's right, we're already planning the upcoming Fall 15k. The date has been chosen, it'll be on September 18th. The 15k Race Committee has been hard at work on sponsorships, awards, the course, attracting more runners, etc. We already have some major sponsors, but are looking

Tips to get you off your butt and running

By Martha Gurtz

So the warm weather and lengthening days aren't enough motivation to get you out the door? Well, don't fret because what follows are six sure-fire ways to increase your running enjoyment that will pick you up by the shoelaces and send you flying out that door.

1. Vary your route. Besides outwitting potential attackers, varying your route will bring new scenery into view, keeping your neurons engaged and your pace lively. Get off the beaten path once in awhile and beat one of your own.

2. Run with someone. Another good attacker-deterrant, a running partner can be someone to converse with on an easy run or, alternatively, someone with whom to enjoy some healthy competition. And when searching for running partners, don't limit yourself to the Homo sapiens species! A dog will do just as well; I recommend a medium to large breed that will be able to keep up with you. However, a small dog, cat, rodent, or reptile can easily be tucked under one arm and will serve as a good conversation starter. Be sure to switch arms every half-mile.

3. Leave your watch at home. Every so often, leave your watch at home and run just for the sake of running. Run how you feel, where you feel, for how long you feel, and with no pressure to extend your route to gain that extra five minutes. I guarantee you will feel happy and rejuvenated.

4. Do something different. Run some hills, run barefoot, run in the rain, run on a trail through the woods, run backwards, run across an open field yipping and flailing your arms above your head. Be creative! You shouldn't need my help for this one...

5. Run to get somewhere. Thousands of years ago, our ancestors ran in pursuit of their prey, ran to deliver messages to neighboring communities, and later ran to the gas station to pick up fuel for their newest invention: fire. Today, you can get back to your primeval roots by giving your run a purpose - to get from point A to point B. Instead of being a chore, running becomes a mode of transportation, and the errand - well, that becomes the chore.

6. Stay off the treadmill! If boredom were an inanimate object, it would be a treadmill. Need I say more?

Marth Gurtz is a senior here at the UW and plans to expand her running column worldwide by the end of the year. Way to go!

Upcoming social

The end of the year picnic is just around the corner. Be sure to attend to enjoy the food, frisbee and money giveaway. The date and place of the picnic have yet to be determined.

End of the line

For several months, the marathon class has endured early mornings, Ron's barking, long runs and nagging injuries. Wish Sarah Le Cloux, Amit Shukla and Anne Jensen good luck in trying to pass the final exam of running a marathon.

Membership benefits

Being in the running club not only gets you great company to run with. You also get great deals at running stores around Madison. Both the New Balance store and Movin' Shoes will cut us discounts when you present them your official running club membership card. Discounts are up to 20% off all running merchandise.

Clothing drive

Anne Jensen has done a wonderful job organizing and purchasing the new running club clothing. As of press time, the order for our singlets and sweatshirts went in about a week ago. The order should be back before the Meriter's Nurses Run.

Numbers

The running club is sporting over 70 people on the email list now, including Stetka. The numbers at the track workouts have been steady, around 20 each week. Don't let the end of the semester hold you back from coming. It's a great break from school and the man.

Welcome new members

Jim Black, Anglea Heppner, Mary Arena, Lauren Newcomb, Lisa Langlitz, Michelle Minikel, Jessica Hollman, Alexis Cirilli, Amy Odegard, Ross Filice and Vance Lehman are all new members to the running club since the beginning of the semester. Thanks for joining and keep on running.

for more so we can put on as good a race as possible. The committee is on schedule, and should have everything taken care of far enough before the race so that it isn't a scramble to get things done on time.

Of course, just because you're not part of the Fall 15k committee doesn't mean that you can't help. We need lots of people to help both now and the day of the race. As many of you know, we had a bit of a problem at last year's Fall 15k. Of course, if we get the number of volunteers out there as we did for the Valentine's Day 5k, we shouldn't have a problem. All running club members are encouraged to help out.

The running club has a reputation for putting on good races. Let's build on this reputation and do what we can.

ANNOUNCING...

The Member of the Month

Name: Sarah Foley
Year: Grad Student
Major: Rehab Psychology
Hometown: MarshallTown, IA
Favorite Race: 5K

Sarah was a no brainer for selection as the member of the month. She has done plenty of work for the running club, especially with the Valentine's 5K. Her attitude and spirit also helps with the cohesion of the entire club.

Sarah's running started in high school, when her parents, looking for something for her to do after school, "forced her" to join the XC team. The decision was obviously a wise one, since Sarah ended up running in college, at Loras College in Dubuque, Iowa.

OUR BRAVE PRESIDENT SAYS...

See the shoe, be the shoe.

Web page finds new home

The running club's new web page came online in early March this year. Our web page is clearly better than all the other Rec Sports web pages. We're so humble. Now we just want other people to see our creation too. This task involves entering the site into various search engines like Yahoo, AltaVista, etc. Even though the construction of the page is done, the work for this site is always evolving.

The main page (www.sit.wisc.edu/~uwrc) contains a huge running shoe with UWRC written on it, created by Dan Hyland. The current schedule is also available here, which usually houses what we're doing on the track before we actually run it. The rest of the site is divided into several subject areas. This includes a section on what the running club is about, contact information, a section on bios of committee heads, and the member of the month.

Other sections contain links to past newsletters, various track workouts that we do in club, our social activities, and links to running related web sites, compiled by Martha Gurtz. There's also a section on the different committees, and their functions. Hopefully, our races will be able to use this site effectively. The possibility of an electronic application form or just general information on the race are both ideas for combining the races and the web.

Do you have any comments, questions or ideas on what this web page should have? Contact Travis (tjgordon@students...) or Amit (samit@cs.wisc.edu) and we'll be sure to guide you in the right direction.
